The Department of Native Studies at the University of Saskatchewan invites applications for a limited term appointment at the rank of Lecturer, for the period July 1, 2015 to June 30, 2016. Applicants will have a PhD, or be near completion, in Indigenous Studies, a related discipline, or interdisciplinary program, and have demonstrated excellence in teaching and Indigenous community engagement. The successful candidate will teach 18 credit units, including INDG 107, a range of upper level Indigenous Studies courses and be an active member of the Department.

Native Studies is an interdisciplinary academic department that offers BA, BA Honours, Masters, and special-case Ph.D. programs. We are situated in the Social Science Division of the College of Arts and Science and currently have six full-time faculty members with five additional associate and adjunct members from other departments and institutions. Native Studies is dedicated to the development of applied and theoretical investigations of Indigenous concerns and strategic community-based research. It is also dedicated to servicing the Indigenous Studies content needs of other academic programs in the university on and off-campus. We are currently undergoing a curriculum renewal process, which includes new course development and course revisions, to meet our renewed values, vision and mission. We are also going through a name change from Native Studies to Indigenous Studies. For more information on the Department, see http://artsandscience.usask.ca/nativestudies/.

Interested candidates will submit a letter of application, which must include the Indigenous Studies courses they are qualified to teach, an up-to-date CV, a teaching dossier, and three letters of reference. The application package must be addressed to:
