Applications are invited from qualified individuals for a 5-year limited term appointment as Assistant Professor in the Department of History, College of Arts and Science. The department seeks a specialist in the history of gender and/or sexualities in twentieth-century continental Europe, with a preference for someone working in queer history. The successful candidate will enhance the department’s research and teaching profile in gender and sexuality, one of its signature areas. The successful candidate will develop and teach a first-year thematic course in the history of gender and/or sexualities, second-year survey courses in European history, and upper year courses in the area of specialization. Participation in the department’s M.A. and Ph.D. programs will also be required.

With 25 faculty and over 50 graduate students, the Department of History at the University of Saskatchewan is one of the top research-intensive and graduate degree-granting institutions in Canada (https://artsandscience.usask.ca/history/). Signature research areas include Indigenous, colonial, and post-colonial histories; the prairies and the North American West; gender and sexuality; health and medicine; environmental history; 20th century politics, culture, and foreign relations; and the history and politics of memory. The department supports a wide range of interdisciplinary and community-engaged scholarship and hosts the Community-Engaged Collaboratorium and the Historical GIS Lab (https://hgis.usask.ca/).

The College of Arts and Science offers a dynamic combination of programs in the humanities, fine arts, social sciences, and natural sciences. There are more than 10,000 undergraduate and graduate students enrolled in the College, and 312 faculty members, including seven Canada Research Chairs. The College emphasizes student and faculty research, interdisciplinary programs, community outreach, and international opportunities.

The University of Saskatchewan’s main campus is situated on Treaty 6 Territory and the Homeland of the Métis. The University of Saskatchewan is located in Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, a city with a diverse and thriving economic base, a vibrant arts community and a full range of leisure opportunities.
