Applications are invited from qualified individuals for a limited-term ten-month position in Music Theory (September 1, 2020 – June 30, 2021) at the rank of Lecturer with the Department of Music at the University of Saskatchewan. The successful candidate will: teach undergraduate- and potentially graduate-level courses in music theory and possibly other courses commensurate with the candidate’s expertise and departmental needs; and will undertake administrative activities corresponding to rank. In keeping with a significant University of Saskatchewan commitment, the Department welcomes candidates who will demonstrate leadership with respect to Indigenization, as well as community and outreach engagement.

With a present complement of nine full-time faculty members and twenty sessional instructors, the Department of Music offers a B.Mus. (Performance, Individualized, and Music Education streams), a B.A. (Major in Music), as well as graduate degrees in musicology, music theory, and performance. The Department of Music has an established record of national and international interdisciplinary activities relating to academic pursuits, performing ensembles, and a variety of outreach and engagement activities. As well, the Department of Music is home to the David L. Kaplan Instrument Collection. For more information about the Department of Music visit http://www.usask.ca/music/.

The University of Saskatchewan’s main campus is situated on Treaty 6 Territory and the Homeland of the Métis. The University of Saskatchewan is located in Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, a city with a diverse and thriving economic base, a vibrant arts community and a full range of leisure opportunities. The University has a reputation for excellence in teaching, research and scholarly activities and offers a full range of undergraduate, graduate, and professional programs to a student population of over 25,000.

Qualifications

A doctorate in music theory at the time of appointment is preferred (ABD considered). We are seeking candidates who: (i) have demonstrated effective classroom teaching skills and mentorship in music theory at the university level; (ii) within the breadth of the field of music theory, have an established or an emerging research profile; (iii) are willing to participate in advancing the department’s engagement in Indigeneity, interdisciplinary collaboration and community-inspired projects.

Salary band: Lecturer $80,116 - $118,960

This position includes a comprehensive benefits package which includes a dental, health and extended vision care plan; pension plan, life insurance (compulsory and voluntary), sick leave, travel insurance, death benefits, an employee assistance program, a professional expense allowance, and a flexible health and wellness spending program.
Interested candidates must submit, via email, a cover letter; detailed curriculum vitae; and other supporting documents (including scholarly writing samples (publications preferred); statement of teaching philosophy; and where available teaching evaluations). Candidates are to arrange to have three confidential letters of recommendation sent under separate cover. All materials are to be submitted to:
